

State of Colorado
The House of Representatives
Convened in the
Seventy-Third General Assembly
Hereby extends sincere commendations to
The Colorado Senior Lobby

Colorado Senior Lobby has, for over forty years, provided older Coloradans with a voice at the Capitol – a voice that has provided critical information, education and advocacy to legislators and staff regarding important issues about our rapidly aging state. We, the members of this 73rd Colorado General Assembly, recognize and appreciate the efforts of Colorado Senior Lobby in helping our members better understand the many ways in which aging is a universally lived experience with impacts on ourselves, our families, our communities and our economy. Older Coloradans, many of whom are members of this body, are to be recognized as a fundamental resource of institutional knowledge and wisdom to be included and involved in the planning and delivery of the programs, legislative initiatives and services that may affect them. Colorado Senior Lobby reminds us that we must recognize the value that older Coloradans bring to the state's economy and communities. We also recognize that negative stereotypes of aging are unacceptable and unhelpful and that age 65 is not the end of a productive life but instead provides new opportunities to contribute to our communities and the state that this body can support and take action on when appropriate.
